

FORDSON INDUSTRIAL TRACTOR SHOW AT FAIR IS EDUCATIONAL

Monster Demonstration Given for Purpose of Acquainting Municipal and Industrial Leaders, as Well as Agriculturalists, With Its Value and Uses.

With the snoring of motors, the clanking of winches, the whirling of steel cables, the clatter of loaders and huge shovels, and the belching of other mechanical noises, the Fordson industrial tractor show, now in progress at the Virginia State Fair, is winning the unqualified admiration of the thousands of visitors. Scores of whom passed through the entrance on Wednesday. It bids fair to completely eclipse and surpass even the highest claims made for it by those most enthusiastic of Fordson backers, the Ford dealers themselves.

Included in this demonstration, which is being given free of charge daily from 9 A. M. to 6 P. M., up to and including next Tuesday, are over 100 mechanical exhibits, all operated by tractors and many of which have never before been shown as industrial adjuncts.

This monster demonstration is given for the purpose of acquainting municipal and industrial leaders of the territory, as well as agriculturalists, with the value and uses of the tractor.

At the show, a tractor, equipped with locomotive wheels, may be seen operating on railroad tracks, hauling construction cars and other railroad equipment. This locomotive tractor shows that the gasoline engine is being utilized in many parts of the country to supersede steam as power.

In another part of the exhibit, a huge derrick is being operated by a tractor, installed as a part of the tractor itself.

A rock crusher, moved into its location by tractor power and then operated by the same tractor that hauled it, is being used in daily demonstrations to show road-builders how their problems can be solved.

Other road-building machinery includes graders, ditchers, scrapers, block and pavement plows and blowers, which will cut their way through roots of trees.

Tractors are being shown loading trailer dump bodies, which are then hauled by tractors, unloaded and brought back to where the excavating operations are in progress.

People have thought of the tractor purely as an agricultural implement. At this exhibit, they can see how it has become effective, and is a part of the general industrial life, doing work easily, quickly and economically, which heretofore has required special equipment and special engineering ability for its performance.

MUDANIA PARLEYS AT ABRUPT CLOSE: DELEGATES LEAVE

(Continued From First Page)

Get in touch with the destroyer forces by wireless.

The report came through the Greek location here. It said that Turkish irregulars had fired upon an American destroyer while it was engaged in removing refugees from Aivali. No details were given.

Navy and State Department officials stated that the report was authentic, but that the department would have been advised immediately should an attack have occurred.

There is the possibility that some individual or small group of individuals may have fired from ambush in the narrow straits, it was said, unless having had resulted no attention would be paid to the occurrence, it was added.

Should there be any thing of a dangerous sort, it was stated officially, the destroyers will immediately go into action. The most serious engagement that officials here believe possible is one between a small body of Turkish irregulars and a landing party from one of the destroyers.

Turks Near Kandra.
(By Associated Press.)
CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 5.—British general headquarters reports the occurrence of a Turkish Nationalist cavalry at Kandra in the Constantinople neutral zone.

Kandra is approximately sixty-five miles east of Constantinople, near the Black Sea coast of the Ismail peninsula.

SAUNDERS' RULING NOT TO BAR EFFORT FOR EXTRA SESSION

(Continued From First Page)

Legislative Reference Bureau, from whom the Governor also sought an opinion, responded in kind. While giving no reply to the question was not as voluminous as that of Attorney General Saunders, it carried practically the same conclusions.

Many municipal and civic organizations throughout the State have petitioned the Governor to call a special session for the purpose of correcting the error in the apportionment bill. Upon request of Mayor Alexander, the City Council of Richmond adopted a resolution to this effect. Norfolk and other city Councils and Chambers of Commerce have acted likewise. Under the proposed apportionment, Richmond gets two additional seats.

STOP ITCHING ECZEMA

Penetrating Antiseptic Zemo Will Help You.

Never mind how often you have tried and failed, you can stop itching, burning, itching quickly by applying Zemo. Turned by any drug store for $1.00. Extra large bottle, $2.00. Healing begins the moment Zemo is applied. In a short time usually every trace of Eczema, Tetter, Pimples, Rash, Blackheads and similar skin diseases will be removed. For chafing the skin and making it vigorously healthy, always use Zemo. The penetrating, antiseptic fluid. When others fail it is the one dependable treatment for skin troubles of all kinds.—Adv.

J. F. Kohler & Sons

Diamonds

Set in Platinum

Solitaires or clusters, each precious stone a beautiful example of the lapidary's art enhanced by mountings of exquisite design.

Selections from $50.00 Up.
209 East Broad Street.

Harding Takes Role of First Fan in U. S.

(By Universal Service.)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—President Harding is living up to his title of "first fan of the land" by following every play of the world's championship series between the Yankees and Giants.

A private wire into the White House executive office from the Polo grounds ticks off even the balls and strikes. Each play is recorded on a blank and sent over to the President, while another operator keeps the score card.

The President, always an American League fan, is rooting for the Yankees. He recently told Captain Baughman, of the Giants, that he believed the Yankees would win because of their pitching staff, unless Nott and Barnes are in the form they were during the last world's series.

Long Distance for Seats.
The man who holds the record for trying at least to buy concert tickets at long range is probably the resident of Honolulu, who telegraphed Jascha Heifetz's manager and asked for two seats for the violinist's recital in San Francisco. This happened when the noted Russian artist was in Honolulu en route to America from Australia a few months ago. He gave two recitals in the "Paradise City," both to sold out houses, and one afternoon the office telephone rang for the hundredth time and a voice at the other end said: "Can you reserve seats for Mr. Heifetz's concert?"

San Francisco week after next? "Send my check now." The manager had to decline it, however, not knowing whether there was a seat left for the opening San Francisco concert, but he advised the eager fan to cable the Priceo manager. And he did. Richmond music votes will not have to go to this point for Heifetz is to appear here January 9, under Mrs. Wilson-Greene's management.

The Lyric.
The Lyric bill for the last half of the week fills the first requisite of vaudeville—it is highly entertaining. Roger Gray & Co., with Eulalie Young, in the "Traffic Cop," seemed quite to capture the audience. The idea of the act is very attractive. The jokes are also new and funny. Eulalie Young is absurd.

Waiters & Cool in "Nuts" are genuinely funny. The pantomime is good and the songs get across well. The parody on the "Sheik" is unusual and well executed.

The skit, "Listen Lester," is very well cast. The act is very funny, and the dancing particularly good. Harvard, Bruce & Winfred, have a good acrobatic act. The two men in the Italy Raymond Trio produce some excellent dancing.

Special Pathé News, which is always interesting, is especially so this week. The remarkable and sensational pictures of burning Smyrna are well worth seeing. The film was brought 6,000 miles and released in fifteen days, a feat which is considered one of the biggest scoops in the history of the news reel.

V. L. C.

At the Colonial.
"Stolen Moment," by H. Thompson Rich, starring Rodolph Valentino, with Marguerite Namara, is presented at the Colonial for the last half of this week. The story is hopeless. Its theme is the over-worked one in which the dead and seemingly buried past rises up to wipe out the happiness of the present. It is melodramatic, and some of the moments are ridiculous. On the other hand, the scenery is gorgeous and the settings magnificent.

Rodolph is his usual debonair, fascinating self. He fully justifies his title in this picture as "the great lover of the screen." Marguerite Namara is also rather good, although her acting is overdone at times. The little child is adorable.

Hobby Vernon, featured in the Rolin comedy, "Tis the Bull," is just as cute as ever. The comedy is funny and well directed.

Moving Pictures

Amusements

To Present "The Circle."

Wilton Lackaye's role in "The Circle" fits him so perfectly that it is hard to make one believe that it was not a ready-made affair. There is even a wrinkle across the shoulder and the part he portrays is all that it should be to give this excellent actor the opportunity to display the ability that has established him so warmly in the hearts of theatergoers. Henry E. Dixey, the sterling American actor, has been a Broadway star so long that he needs no introduction, the mere mention of his name with a play assures one that it has quality and class. Like the proverbial well-made glove on the hand is Amelia Bingham's part in Somerset Maugham's comedy which ran for a solid year at the Selwyn Theater, New York, equaling its record in London and Paris. Along with these go a cast, the most unique ever sent on tour, among whom are Charlotte Walker, who has charm, dresse, technique and everything else that goes to make a successful star. Norman Hackett is always splendid and has had occasion to display his talent here to local theatergoers in other vehicles.

Mr. Maugham has provided a original triangle with scintillating lines and epigrams that make "The Circle" the smartest play that New York has seen in years—and with the wonderful cast that the Selwyn have selected to present this excellent attraction here it should prove the theatrical event of the year. The Circle will be presented at the Academy Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, and Wednesday matinee.

Long Distance for Seats.

The man who holds the record for trying at least to buy concert tickets at long range is probably the resident of Honolulu, who telegraphed Jascha Heifetz's manager and asked for two seats for the violinist's recital in San Francisco. This happened when the noted Russian artist was in Honolulu en route to America from Australia a few months ago. He gave two recitals in the "Paradise City," both to sold out houses, and one afternoon the office telephone rang for the hundredth time and a voice at the other end said: "Can you reserve seats for Mr. Heifetz's concert?"

San Francisco week after next? "Send my check now." The manager had to decline it, however, not knowing whether there was a seat left for the opening San Francisco concert, but he advised the eager fan to cable the Priceo manager. And he did. Richmond music votes will not have to go to this point for Heifetz is to appear here January 9, under Mrs. Wilson-Greene's management.

The Lyric.

The Lyric bill for the last half of the week fills the first requisite of vaudeville—it is highly entertaining. Roger Gray & Co., with Eulalie Young, in the "Traffic Cop," seemed quite to capture the audience. The idea of the act is very attractive. The jokes are also new and funny. Eulalie Young is absurd.

Waiters & Cool in "Nuts" are genuinely funny. The pantomime is good and the songs get across well. The parody on the "Sheik" is unusual and well executed.

The skit, "Listen Lester," is very well cast. The act is very funny, and the dancing particularly good. Harvard, Bruce & Winfred, have a good acrobatic act. The two men in the Italy Raymond Trio produce some excellent dancing.

Special Pathé News, which is always interesting, is especially so this week. The remarkable and sensational pictures of burning Smyrna are well worth seeing. The film was brought 6,000 miles and released in fifteen days, a feat which is considered one of the biggest scoops in the history of the news reel.

V. L. C.

At the Colonial.

"Stolen Moment," by H. Thompson Rich, starring Rodolph Valentino, with Marguerite Namara, is presented at the Colonial for the last half of this week. The story is hopeless. Its theme is the over-worked one in which the dead and seemingly buried past rises up to wipe out the happiness of the present. It is melodramatic, and some of the moments are ridiculous. On the other hand, the scenery is gorgeous and the settings magnificent.

Rodolph is his usual debonair, fascinating self. He fully justifies his title in this picture as "the great lover of the screen." Marguerite Namara is also rather good, although her acting is overdone at times. The little child is adorable.

Hobby Vernon, featured in the Rolin comedy, "Tis the Bull," is just as cute as ever. The comedy is funny and well directed.

Moving Pictures

Amusements

To Present "The Circle."

Wilton Lackaye's role in "The Circle" fits him so perfectly that it is hard to make one believe that it was not a ready-made affair. There is even a wrinkle across the shoulder and the part he portrays is all that it should be to give this excellent actor the opportunity to display the ability that has established him so warmly in the hearts of theatergoers. Henry E. Dixey, the sterling American actor, has been a Broadway star so long that he needs no introduction, the mere mention of his name with a play assures one that it has quality and class. Like the proverbial well-made glove on the hand is Amelia Bingham's part in Somerset Maugham's comedy which ran for a solid year at the Selwyn Theater, New York, equaling its record in London and Paris. Along with these go a cast, the most unique ever sent on tour, among whom are Charlotte Walker, who has charm, dresse, technique and everything else that goes to make a successful star. Norman Hackett is always splendid and has had occasion to display his talent here to local theatergoers in other vehicles.

Mr. Maugham has provided a original triangle with scintillating lines and epigrams that make "The Circle" the smartest play that New York has seen in years—and with the wonderful cast that the Selwyn have selected to present this excellent attraction here it should prove the theatrical event of the year. The Circle will be presented at the Academy Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, and Wednesday matinee.

Long Distance for Seats.

The man who holds the record for trying at least to buy concert tickets at long range is probably the resident of Honolulu, who telegraphed Jascha Heifetz's manager and asked for two seats for the violinist's recital in San Francisco. This happened when the noted Russian artist was in Honolulu en route to America from Australia a few months ago. He gave two recitals in the "Paradise City," both to sold out houses, and one afternoon the office telephone rang for the hundredth time and a voice at the other end said: "Can you reserve seats for Mr. Heifetz's concert?"

San Francisco week after next? "Send my check now." The manager had to decline it, however, not knowing whether there was a seat left for the opening San Francisco concert, but he advised the eager fan to cable the Priceo manager. And he did. Richmond music votes will not have to go to this point for Heifetz is to appear here January 9, under Mrs. Wilson-Greene's management.

The Lyric.

The Lyric bill for the last half of the week fills the first requisite of vaudeville—it is highly entertaining. Roger Gray & Co., with Eulalie Young, in the "Traffic Cop," seemed quite to capture the audience. The idea of the act is very attractive. The jokes are also new and funny. Eulalie Young is absurd.

Waiters & Cool in "Nuts" are genuinely funny. The pantomime is good and the songs get across well. The parody on the "Sheik" is unusual and well executed.

The skit, "Listen Lester," is very well cast. The act is very funny, and the dancing particularly good. Harvard, Bruce & Winfred, have a good acrobatic act. The two men in the Italy Raymond Trio produce some excellent dancing.

Special Pathé News, which is always interesting, is especially so this week. The remarkable and sensational pictures of burning Smyrna are well worth seeing. The film was brought 6,000 miles and released in fifteen days, a feat which is considered one of the biggest scoops in the history of the news reel.

V. L. C.

At the Colonial.

"Stolen Moment," by H. Thompson Rich, starring Rodolph Valentino, with Marguerite Namara, is presented at the Colonial for the last half of this week. The story is hopeless. Its theme is the over-worked one in which the dead and seemingly buried past rises up to wipe out the happiness of the present. It is melodramatic, and some of the moments are ridiculous. On the other hand, the scenery is gorgeous and the settings magnificent.

Rodolph is his usual debonair, fascinating self. He fully justifies his title in this picture as "the great lover of the screen." Marguerite Namara is also rather good, although her acting is overdone at times. The little child is adorable.

Hobby Vernon, featured in the Rolin comedy, "Tis the Bull," is just as cute as ever. The comedy is funny and well directed.

Moving Pictures

Amusements

To Present "The Circle."

Wilton Lackaye's role in "The Circle" fits him so perfectly that it is hard to make one believe that it was not a ready-made affair. There is even a wrinkle across the shoulder and the part he portrays is all that it should be to give this excellent actor the opportunity to display the ability that has established him so warmly in the hearts of theatergoers. Henry E. Dixey, the sterling American actor, has been a Broadway star so long that he needs no introduction, the mere mention of his name with a play assures one that it has quality and class. Like the proverbial well-made glove on the hand is Amelia Bingham's part in Somerset Maugham's comedy which ran for a solid year at the Selwyn Theater, New York, equaling its record in London and Paris. Along with these go a cast, the most unique ever sent on tour, among whom are Charlotte Walker, who has charm, dresse, technique and everything else that goes to make a successful star. Norman Hackett is always splendid and has had occasion to display his talent here to local theatergoers in other vehicles.

Mr. Maugham has provided a original triangle with scintillating lines and epigrams that make "The Circle" the smartest play that New York has seen in years—and with the wonderful cast that the Selwyn have selected to present this excellent attraction here it should prove the theatrical event of the year. The Circle will be presented at the Academy Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, and Wednesday matinee.

Long Distance for Seats.

The man who holds the record for trying at least to buy concert tickets at long range is probably the resident of Honolulu, who telegraphed Jascha Heifetz's manager and asked for two seats for the violinist's recital in San Francisco. This happened when the noted Russian artist was in Honolulu en route to America from Australia a few months ago. He gave two recitals in the "Paradise City," both to sold out houses, and one afternoon the office telephone rang for the hundredth time and a voice at the other end said: "Can you reserve seats for Mr. Heifetz's concert?"

San Francisco week after next? "Send my check now." The manager had to decline it, however, not knowing whether there was a seat left for the opening San Francisco concert, but he advised the eager fan to cable the Priceo manager. And he did. Richmond music votes will not have to go to this point for Heifetz is to appear here January 9, under Mrs. Wilson-Greene's management.

The Lyric.

The Lyric bill for the last half of the week fills the first requisite of vaudeville—it is highly entertaining. Roger Gray & Co., with Eulalie Young, in the "Traffic Cop," seemed quite to capture the audience. The idea of the act is very attractive. The jokes are also new and funny. Eulalie Young is absurd.

Waiters & Cool in "Nuts" are genuinely funny. The pantomime is good and the songs get across well. The parody on the "Sheik" is unusual and well executed.

The skit, "Listen Lester," is very well cast. The act is very funny, and the dancing particularly good. Harvard, Bruce & Winfred, have a good acrobatic act. The two men in the Italy Raymond Trio produce some excellent dancing.

Special Pathé News, which is always interesting, is especially so this week. The remarkable and sensational pictures of burning Smyrna are well worth seeing. The film was brought 6,000 miles and released in fifteen days, a feat which is considered one of the biggest scoops in the history of the news reel.

V. L. C.

At the Colonial.

"Stolen Moment," by H. Thompson Rich, starring Rodolph Valentino, with Marguerite Namara, is presented at the Colonial for the last half of this week. The story is hopeless. Its theme is the over-worked one in which the dead and seemingly buried past rises up to wipe out the happiness of the present. It is melodramatic, and some of the moments are ridiculous. On the other hand, the scenery is gorgeous and the settings magnificent.

Rodolph is his usual debonair, fascinating self. He fully justifies his title in this picture as "the great lover of the screen." Marguerite Namara is also rather good, although her acting is overdone at times. The little child is adorable.

Hobby Vernon, featured in the Rolin comedy, "Tis the Bull," is just as cute as ever. The comedy is funny and well directed.

Moving Pictures

Amusements

To Present "The Circle."

Wilton Lackaye's role in "The Circle" fits him so perfectly that it is hard to make one believe that it was not a ready-made affair. There is even a wrinkle across the shoulder and the part he portrays is all that it should be to give this excellent actor the opportunity to display the ability that has established him so warmly in the hearts of theatergoers. Henry E. Dixey, the sterling American actor, has been a Broadway star so long that he needs no introduction, the mere mention of his name with a play assures one that it has quality and class. Like the proverbial well-made glove on the hand is Amelia Bingham's part in Somerset Maugham's comedy which ran for a solid year at the Selwyn Theater, New York, equaling its record in London and Paris. Along with these go a cast, the most unique ever sent on tour, among whom are Charlotte Walker, who has charm, dresse, technique and everything else that goes to make a successful star. Norman Hackett is always splendid and has had occasion to display his talent here to local theatergoers in other vehicles.

Mr. Maugham has provided a original triangle with scintillating lines and epigrams that make "The Circle" the smartest play that New York has seen in years—and with the wonderful cast that the Selwyn have selected to present this excellent attraction here it should prove the theatrical event of the year. The Circle will be presented at the Academy Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, and Wednesday matinee.

Long Distance for Seats.

The man who holds the record for trying at least to buy concert tickets at long range is probably the resident of Honolulu, who telegraphed Jascha Heifetz's manager and asked for two seats for the violinist's recital in San Francisco. This happened when the noted Russian artist was in Honolulu en route to America from Australia a few months ago. He gave two recitals in the "Paradise City," both to sold out houses, and one afternoon the office telephone rang for the hundredth time and a voice at the other end said: "Can you reserve seats for Mr. Heifetz's concert?"

San Francisco week after next? "Send my check now." The manager had to decline it, however, not knowing whether there was a seat left for the opening San Francisco concert, but he advised the eager fan to cable the Priceo manager. And he did. Richmond music votes will not have to go to this point for Heifetz is to appear here January 9, under Mrs. Wilson-Greene's management.

The Lyric.

The Lyric bill for the last half of the week fills the first requisite of vaudeville—it is highly entertaining. Roger Gray & Co., with Eulalie Young, in the "Traffic Cop," seemed quite to capture the audience. The idea of the act is very attractive. The jokes are also new and funny. Eulalie Young is absurd.

Waiters & Cool in "Nuts" are genuinely funny. The pantomime is good and the songs get across well. The parody on the "Sheik" is unusual and well executed.

The skit, "Listen Lester," is very well cast. The act is very funny, and the dancing particularly good. Harvard, Bruce & Winfred, have a good acrobatic act. The two men in the Italy Raymond Trio produce some excellent dancing.

Special Pathé News, which is always interesting, is especially so this week. The remarkable and sensational pictures of burning Smyrna are well worth seeing. The film was brought 6,000 miles and released in fifteen days, a feat which is considered one of the biggest scoops in the history of the news reel.

V. L. C.

At the Colonial.

"Stolen Moment," by H. Thompson Rich, starring Rodolph Valentino, with Marguerite Namara, is presented at the Colonial for the last half of this week. The story

talent here to local theatergoers in other vehicles.

Mr. Maugham has provided a original triangle with scintillating lines and epigrams that make "The Circle" the smartest play that New York has seen in years—and with the wonderful cast that the Selwyn have selected to present this excellent attraction here it should prove the theatrical event of the year. The Circle will be presented at the Academy Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, and Wednesday matinee.

Long Distance for Seats.

The man who holds the record for trying at least to buy concert tickets at long range is probably the resident of Honolulu, who telegraphed Jascha Heifetz's manager and asked for two seats for the violinist's recital in San Francisco. This happened when the noted Russian artist was in Honolulu en route to America from Australia a few months ago. He gave two recitals in the "Paradise City," both to sold out houses, and one afternoon the office telephone rang for the hundredth time and a voice at the other end said: "Can you reserve seats for Mr. Heifetz's concert?"

San Francisco week after next? "Send my check now." The manager had to decline it, however, not knowing whether there was a seat left for the opening San Francisco concert, but he advised the eager fan to cable the Priceo manager. And he did. Richmond music votes will not have to go to this point for Heifetz is to appear here January 9, under Mrs. Wilson-Greene's management.

The Lyric.

The Lyric bill for the last half of the week fills the first requisite of vaudeville—it is highly entertaining. Roger Gray & Co., with Eulalie Young, in the "Traffic Cop," seemed quite to capture the audience. The idea of the act is very attractive. The jokes are also new and funny. Eulalie Young is absurd.

Waiters & Cool in "Nuts" are genuinely funny. The pantomime is good and the songs get across well. The parody on the "Sheik" is unusual and well executed.

The skit, "Listen Lester," is very well cast. The act is very funny, and the dancing particularly good. Harvard, Bruce & Winfred, have a good acrobatic act. The two men in the Italy Raymond Trio produce some excellent dancing.

Special Pathé News, which is always interesting, is especially so this week. The remarkable and sensational pictures of burning Smyrna are well worth seeing. The film was brought 6,000 miles and released in fifteen days, a feat which is considered one of the biggest scoops in the history of the news reel.

V. L. C.

At the Colonial.

"Stolen Moment," by H. Thompson Rich, starring Rodolph Valentino, with Marguerite Namara, is presented at the Colonial for the last half of this week. The story is hopeless. Its theme is the over-worked one in which the dead and seemingly buried past rises up to wipe out the happiness of the present. It is melodramatic, and some of the moments are ridiculous. On the other hand, the scenery is gorgeous and the settings magnificent.

Rodolph is his usual debonair, fascinating self. He fully justifies his title in this picture as "the great lover of the screen." Marguerite Namara is also rather good, although her acting is overdone at times. The little child is adorable.

Hobby Vernon, featured in the Rolin comedy, "Tis the Bull," is just as cute as ever. The comedy is funny and well directed.

Moving Pictures

Amusements

To Present "The Circle."

Wilton Lackaye's role in "The Circle" fits him so perfectly that it is hard to make one believe that it was not a ready-made affair. There is even a wrinkle across the shoulder and the part he portrays is all that it should be to give this excellent actor the opportunity to display the ability that has established him so warmly in the hearts of theatergoers. Henry E. Dixey, the sterling American actor, has been a Broadway star so long that he needs no introduction, the mere mention of his name with a play assures one that it has quality and class. Like the proverbial well-made glove on the hand is Amelia Bingham's part in Somerset Maugham's comedy which ran for a solid year at the Selwyn Theater, New York, equaling its record in London and Paris. Along with these go a cast, the most unique ever sent on tour, among whom are Charlotte Walker, who has charm, dresse, technique and everything else that goes to make a successful star. Norman Hackett is always splendid and has had occasion to display his talent here to local theatergoers in other vehicles.

Mr. Maugham has provided a original triangle with scintillating lines and epigrams that make "The Circle" the smartest play that New York has seen in years—and with the wonderful cast that the Selwyn have selected to present this excellent attraction here it should prove the theatrical event of the year. The Circle will be presented at the Academy Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, and Wednesday matinee.